

Gabion Construction

Gabions are a recent technology adapting the use of a wire cage and local rock to replace traditional rock retaining wall and rip-rap installations. They are often used for retaining walls and bridge footings when other materials aren't available. This class covers the basics of gabion construction through a combination of discussion, visual aids and hands-on construction of a small retaining gabion.